To what a humiliating condition has the once powerful Republican party been reduced in Tennessee, when, for the paltry consideration of a few seats in the General Assembly, its candidates offer to barter away what little manhood they have left, by helping to vote a Democrat into the United States Senatc. Never in the history of parties has there been such a disgusting exhibition of political dirt-eating.

Mr. Marchbanks now writes time, it is believed that there is a plot on which shall sit from time to time to conus, fully setting forth what he did say on the occasion in question. His letter which is printed in another column, resign his commission as General of the shows how manfully he is battling for the triumph of the Democratic cause in the approaching election, and breathes a patriotic spirit, which is, of itself, assurance of success.

Those Loyal Leaguers that called on the President yesterday are positively impertinent. Their resolutions have a disloyally Democratic twang that is eminently disrespectful to the admidistration which they nominally "endorse." They compliment Messrs. Jewell and Bristow for inaugurating "a healthier order of things in their departments" and "ridding the service of corrupt and inefficient officers." They further commend this example to other "branches of the government." What will the Cabinet officers thus directly impeached have to say-from the stately Fish down to that vile factorum Williams? The loyal leagues clinch these home-thursts by asserting that the weeding out of corrupt officials is necessary to restore the "impaired confidence of the people." Grant smilingly an endorsement of his "administration." Taken altogether, these resolutions are an excellent campaign document for the Democracy in the elections next week, and we move a vote of thanks to the loyal league for their production so a opportunely.

MURFREESBORO, TENN., Oct. 27, 1874. —Gov. Brown spoke here to-day to a large audience. He received the closest attention and was frequently applauded. He urged upon the people to support their nominees, and let no side issues distract them, and thereby cause the defeat of the Democratic party. He arraigned Mr. Maynard in a terrible manuer, and dealt in no easy way with Mr. Johnson. His speech was well received here, and the attempt to defeat our nominees with Civil Rights candidates was exposed and denounced in such a style, that it will get no support in Rutherford. Considerable discussion arose relative to the exclusive character of the institution, the charter having been asked for the pro-provision, admitting other paupers, would be a blessing to such, besides rendering the institution more respectable in itself, and offering to the fallen themselves an additional inducement to escape to a place where their disgrace would not be so conspicuous. It would also save to the churches and community thousands of dollars anmually thrown away on paupers, encouragng them in laziness and filth.
